Florence The Machine Ceremonials

Admittedly I've come to this album rather late, but Ceremonials was the second studio album by Florence and the Machine released back in 2011. The production here is a challenging, atmospheric Rhapsody, very high-church, with harps, bells, shimmers, strings, booming drums, staccato percussion, and keyboards that become more and more prominent over the course of the album.

Florence & The Machine - Ceremonials – Music Farmers

Ceremonials is a stunningly accomplished record by an artist teetering on the wind-blown top of her game, an extraordinary testament to what Florence refers to as "my incorrigible maximalism". The pounding epiphanic positivism of 'Spectrum'; the galloping massed-ranks majesty of 'All This And Heaven Too' and 'Shake It Out'; the triumphant emotional battle cries of 'No Light No Light' and 'Heartlines'.
