The "Battle Hymn of the Republic", also known as "Mine Eyes Have Seen the Glory" outside of the United States, is a popular American patriotic song by the abolitionist writer Julia Ward Howe. Howe wrote her lyrics to the music of the song "John Brown's Body" in November 1861 and first published them in The Atlantic Monthly in February 1862. The song links the judgment of the wicked at the end of the age with the American Civil War.*

Mine Eyes Have Seen is a play by Alice Dunbar Nelson. It was published in the April 1918 edition of the monthly news magazine of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People entitled The Crisis. Nelson examined the idea that the black man's service to his country and his race required his life as a response to the Selective Service Act of 1917 as well as promoted the anti-lynching movement through the exploration of the broken black home during that time.
