Seitai is a form of healing which uses the body's own natural restorative properties, rather than relying on outside sources. It was founded by Haruchika Noguchi, though the term seitai was coined by the Kenko Hojikai group, which was created by the Japanese government prior to World War II.

Le Seitai est basé sur le développement de la perception du corps, de la sensation et l'écoute. Des exercices d'étirement et d'alignement (Taisôs) ciblent la zone principale de fatigue et permettent d'alléger rapidement le corps et de rééduquer la posture, la redressant durablement.
